

※ 注意：請於試卷內之「非選擇題作答區」標明題號依序作答。

You must READ the following general instructions before answering any questions.

General Instructions:

1. Answer the following questions in order.
2. Pay attention to specific instructions, if any, for each section.
3. You must follow instructions to get proper credit.

Section I – Short Answers.

Instructions: Choose any four items or phrases from the following list and briefly describe in English the meaning of each. Write the question along with the answer. (6 points each)

1. Smear campaign
2. Nouveau riche
3. Millennials
4. Centrism
5. Bipartisan
6. Thin end of the wedge
7. Moral hazard
8. The Cloud

Section II – Short Essays.

Instructions: Choose any four from the following list and briefly describe in English what you know about the person, organisation or event. (8 points each)

1. WikiLeaks
2. COP 21
3. Trans-Pacific Partnership
4. Sunflower Movement
5. Donald Trump
6. Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank
7. Narendra Damodardas Modi
8. Chthonic

Section III – Translation.

Instructions: Translate the following passage into Chinese. (20 points)

Traditional Hutong life is dying out in Beijing. The number of Hutong style houses has fallen dramatically in the past few decades as modern office blocks and new and wider roads to cope with Beijing's massive increase in traffic have replaced old areas of traditional housing.

A hundred years ago around 90 percent of ordinary Beijingers lived in Hutong style houses but this is been pared back to just a few small areas in the more traditional parts of the capital such as Yonghegong, with its famous temple.

Many Beijingers now often say that the city is no longer the one they were familiar with. Many of the hutongs, which housed communities of close-knit families for many generations, have been flattened and the space used to build department stores, metro stations, and commercial and financial properties.

An official with the Beijing Municipal Office admitted that hutongs are disappearing, but added that there will be no space in the city for building new skyscrapers and modern facilities if such old-fashioned buildings are not demolished.

Section IV - Analysis

Instructions: Write a short essay of your own analysis of one of the following. This means your own opinions not an explanation of the subject. (24 marks)

1. The South China Sea dispute.
2. The DDP victory in the recent Taiwan election.
3. China's economic slowdown.
4. Europe's refugee crisis.

試題隨卷繳回